Suffolk University Law School
Admissions Committee

To whom it may concern:

I am pleased to write this recommendation for Mr. Movlan Aliyev, who intends to continue his educational path by applying for the Juris Doctor (JD) Program at Suffolk University Law School. I had the pleasure of teaching Mr. Aliyev in my course Politics of the European Union at Northeastern University, where he obtained an "A" grade for his excellent academic performance and thoughtful participation. His active engagement in discussions and his ability to approach complex topics with clarity and balance were remarkable throughout the semester.

In his final paper on Brexit, Mr. Aliyev demonstrated exceptional analytical ability, exploring both the political and legal implications of the issue. His research and argumentation reflected a disciplined intellect and strong reasoning skills—traits that are fundamental for success in legal studies. His insights into European governance and institutional law showed not only the depth of his understanding of the subject but also a genuine interest in how legal systems evolve to address social and political challenges.

Mr. Aliyev was a confident, articulate, and diligent student who consistently contributed meaningfully to class discussions and group projects. His presentation on Eastern European Enlargement of the EU stood out for its originality and structured reasoning. He demonstrated a clear capacity to interpret laws, evaluate competing perspectives, and propose well-grounded, logical solutions—qualities that are indispensable in the study and practice of law.

In addition to his intellectual strengths, Mr. Aliyev is a polite, conscientious, and personable young man. His professionalism, teamwork, and respectful communication style make him a pleasure to work with. I am confident that his strong analytical mindset, combined with his integrity and motivation, will allow him to excel at Suffolk University Law School and beyond.

Sincerely,

Friedrich L. Löhr, Senior Lecturer
Professor of the Practice(Northeastern Univ)
